Willful

Application for Senior Software Developer

Dear Hiring Manager,

My 20+ years of experience as a Senior Software Developer, particularly in enhancing application scalability by 30% and leading complex development projects, aligns perfectly with Willful's mission to simplify end-of-life planning through robust technology. I am enthusiastic about the opportunity to contribute my deep technical expertise to a company focused on such a vital service, especially in designing and maintaining complex, scalable web applications.

A significant part of my background involves architecting enterprise applications and engaging in full-stack development leveraging Node.js and Express.js, integrating with various databases including PostgreSQL, MySQL, and Oracle. My commitment to solving complex technical problems is evidenced by past successes, such as engineering an AR app and developing a custom Video Editor utilizing JavaScript DOM, REST API, and Node.js. This broad experience directly addresses your need for expertise in backend and full-stack development, alongside strong RESTful API design.

I have a proven track record of improving system performance and reliability, notably spearheading the implementation of CI/CD pipelines for four project teams at BELL, while working with DevOps team. This independent contributor role, focused on deep technical work and architectural precision, resonates strongly with Willful's requirements. My detail-oriented approach ensures high-quality, well-tested code, reflecting best practices in testing, monitoring, and code quality. Furthermore, instituting Agile methodologies at JD Irving enhanced development efficiency by 28%, showcasing my ability to drive successful project outcomes and collaborate effectively with technical experts. I am also keen on evaluating and introducing new technologies, including familiarity with generative AI tools, to further enhance efficiency and stability.

I am confident that my background in scalable architecture, backend development, and optimizing system performance makes me an ideal candidate to contribute to Willful's success and ensure the long-term maintainability of your platform. Thank you for considering my application. I look forward to discussing how my skills and architectural focus can benefit your team as you continue to expand your innovative solutions.

Thank you,

Adrian Nadeau
